Course Overview

Written Communication IV is the last level in the series of writing courses given at the UCR sede Occidente, and as such, you will be honing your essay writing skills by applying the technics already learned in previous courses. You will also use the writing process to describe, to classify, to compare and contrast, to analyze a process, to show cause and effect, to convince or persuade, and finally to summarize or paraphrase. This course will continue the practice and manipulation of grammar structure while promoting the use of vocabulary at an advance level. This written communication course in college writing is designed to give you an opportunity to work on your writing, critical thinking, and research skills so that you will succeed both in college and in the professional world. Upon completion of the course, you should be able to discern between logical and fallacious arguments, think more clearly and in greater depth, breadth and detail, and be a little more self-reliant in perceiving good from mediocre prose.

Course Objectives: At the end of the course, students will be capable of:

Method of Instruction

The class format involves lecture, class discussion, student presentation, and workshop, in which students participate in small group critiques of their assignments. Although there will be some inclass writing/grammar exercises, most assignments will be completed outside of class in order to develop the contents of the course anthology while fomenting creative expression habits in students not to mention increasing one vocabulary and expanding ones repertoire in grammatical structures. Student preparation for and participation in class is vital.

(2) Short Papers B (15% each)	30%

Description of Course Assignments

- Group Presentation The presentation may be done individually or in pairs. Groups must choose a chapter from the Writing anthology to present... (First come ... first serve). You should take into account the material read when presenting and create a problem solving activity /game to check the groups understanding of the chapter. Be creative and use technology wherever possible. You have 35 min. of class time to present.
- < Midterm and Final Exams: There will be a standard midterm and final exam that will review the reading assignments and topics discussed in class.
- Short Papers & Paragraph(s): Papers must be between three to five pages and paragraphs must consist of at least five sentences; due dates for these papers/paragraph are listed above in the Schedule of Topics section. These papers/paragraph will not be accepted after the due date and the time given. All items must be typed and students must adhere to proper MLA format in the typing and preparation of their essays. Be it from the internet or any other source, plagiarism will be punished as harshly as university regulations permit. To plead ignorance about what constitutes plagiarism is not a legitimate defense. The use of material that is not your own X be it a phrase, idea, or word X without giving due credit to the author of that material is considered cheating. It is recommended that you take the time to get your rough draft(s) checked by the professor during office hours before each of the due dates. This will help you learn to write a paper/paragraph well as well as obtaining a good grade on your essays and paragraph.

>Ampliacion= Exam

An >Ampliacion= Exam will be given to those students who have obtained a 6.0 to a 6.5. If the student passes this exam, the final grade will be a 7.0. This exam covers all of the course readings and lectures.
